Dear Prince Osei-Wusu Adjei,

On behalf of the Brown International Advanced Research Institutes (BIARI) at Brown University, I am delighted to inform you that your application to participate in Population and Development: New Approaches to Enduring Global Problems has been accepted. We invite you to participate in the Institute, which will take place at Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island, USA, from Saturday, June 8 to Saturday, June 22, 2013.

Due to the generous funding of the Institutes by Brown University and Santander Universities, we are pleased to inform you that your participation in the two-week program will be free of charge. You will be hosted in a Brown University residence hall and all meals during the duration of the program will be provided by BIARI. Our travel agency will work with you to arrange for a round-trip ticket to Providence, Rhode Island, paid for by BIARI. Please be aware that BIARI does not cover the costs of transportation in your home country/country of departure or the costs of obtaining your visa. You will also be responsible for arranging and paying for your own health insurance.

The Institutes have been designed as intensive residential workshops. Acceptance of our invitation requires that for the duration of the Institute, you commit to attend all Institute events, including both the academic and social components of the program.

Please let us know if you will be able to participate by filling out the online response form linked to in the admit e-mail. If you do not respond by March 19, 2013, we will offer your spot in the program to another individual.

We ask that you make visa arrangements as soon as possible. Once you have your visa, you will be able to make travel arrangements through Brown University's contracted travel agency.

We will be in touch with you very soon with further information about the program.

We are excited to welcome you to BIARI 2013!

Best regards,

Keith Brown
